

CORPORATE ATTORNEY

Hodgson Russ LLP is seeking a Corporate Attorney for its Toronto office. The successful candidate should be admitted to practice law in New York State and have at least three years of general corporate experience at a top-tier international law firm and a JD from an accredited law school. This experience should include mergers and acquisitions, entity formation and structuring, commercial contract review and drafting (including joint venture, distribution and supply agreements). The ideal candidate will have Asia-Pacific experience. It is anticipated that the work will be completed in English. Stellar academic credentials and excellent written and verbal communication skills are also required. Experience in trade regulation matters is a plus.

Job duties will include:

- Draft, review, and negotiate agreements for complex transactions
- Perform diligence and opinions in connection with large acquisitions and securitizations
- Prepare shareholders', joint venture, license, dispute settlement and other agreements including NDA and noncompetition agreements
- Structure and form business entities
- Advise clients on a variety of general business matters
