

HEALTH LAW ATTORNEY - NYC

Hodgson Russ LLP is seeking a health law attorney for its New York City office. The health law group counsels hospitals, nursing homes, home health agencies, clinics, ambulatory surgery centers, behavioral health providers, disability service providers and licensed professionals and represents many non-profit, public and for-profit health care organizations, including one of the largest hospital systems in New York State.

The successful candidate must have six or more years of relevant experience dealing with federal and New York State health law regulatory issues (such as the Anti-Kickback Statute, the Stark Law and similar state laws). Experience in reimbursement and compliance issues for health systems, hospitals, long term care providers, managed care organizations or medical groups is a plus. The ideal candidate is a self-starter and has a transferable book of business with growth potential.
